

ART MADE ACCESSIBLE

Hindustan Times Kala Ghoda Art Festival (HTKGAF) doesn't need any introduction to Mumbaikars. This year's theme was sustainability. The Hara Ghoda installation by Shreehari Bhosle present at the venue was a tribute to the same. "To me, it represents the current world scenario. It shows that concrete jungles together with development are destroying nature and environment. The horse represents speed and according to history too, every warrior won their wars with the help of horses. It's a symbol of victory and therefore, I want to urge everyone to believe that nothing's spoiled, go ahead, ride like a warrior and fight against those destroying nature and help protect Mother Earth!"

location has been changed to make the festival reach more people. Most of the art installations, which were part of the festival, will be moved to Andheri. Apart from the display of grand art installations the festival will also have workshops and musical performances.

We spoke to the managing director, Runwal Group, Sandeep Runwal about his vision behind bringing the art festival to the western suburbs.

What's the significance of an initiative like HTKGAF for society?
HTKGAF is one of the largest art and cultural festivals in the country. It's during this festival that people are exposed to many diverse forms of art that dwell in different parts of the country. This year the festival's theme was sustainability. Programs like these are not only good from an art point of view but also help in passing an important message to society.

How is an art festival and real estate related?
Developing a project is a form of art in itself. The architectural design isn't the only art involved, it is an integral part in designing every aspect of the same, be it interiors, clubhouses, other amenities etc. If one observes, no two buildings are alike, every builder strikes to make his building a unique landmark just like an artist strives to make his every piece unique. Real estate investments are one of the biggest financial decisions people make so they have to be aesthetically pleasing, functionally sound and financially viable.

Why did you decide to host the festival at Runwal Elegante?
We have multiple on-going projects across Mumbai. Runwal Elegante is a piece of art in itself, as all the buildings in the township are connected through the rooftops, so what's better than hosting the oldest art festival at one of Mumbai's newest landmark? Runwal Elegante is situated just behind Infront Mall in Lokhandwala, a location which is accessible for most people from the western suburbs. The township is spread across around 5 acres so there'll be enough space to manage the display of art and still host the turnout we are expecting.

What do you think is the highlight of the festival?
The festival extending to the suburbs in itself is the biggest highlight. Plus over weekends there are events organized including a host of live bands and workshops to appeal various age groups. Personally, the musical program scheduled for next weekend would be one of the highlights of the festival for me.
